Over nearly 50 years, BMAC has explored multiple avenues of providing employment assistance to adults and youth in need of job training services. Constantly responding to changes in funding and legislation, BMAC has evolved providing training to meet the needs of workers and youth. Today, BMAC's Job Training Division continues to provide comprehensive employment assistance through education, training, career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources.

BMAC began to implement HUD's Adult Work Experience Program in 1974. This program was designed to train low income workers and provide them with short-term jobs in public service.

In 1977 BMAC partnered with the Regional Career and Technical Education Consortium to improve schools' performance and expand students' opportunities for work experience on construction projects to improve public or low income housing.

In 1978 BMAC's Job Training Center opened a Walla Walla High School career center where students could develop job search skills.

In 1980 BMAC became a Work Source Affiliate, providing access to job search tools in an Employment Center computer lab.

In 1981 BMAC opened its first new SUNOCO computerized guidance system designed to train low income workers and provide them with short-term jobs in public service.

In 1982 BMAC was renamed Washington Energy Conservation and Improvement Project. This program provided recycling program provided 32 new jobs for youth.

In 1985 BMAC began implementing HUD's Work First Program. This program was reauthorized last a few years.

In 1987 BMAC's Job Training Center and school district jointly opened the Rural Career Center, where students could develop job search skills through education, training, career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources.

In 1988 BMAC teamed up with Walla Walla Community College to provide Skills Steps, a college readiness program to help 18 to 24 year olds who were out of school and had overcome academic barriers to being accepted into college.

In 1990 BMAC began providing subsidized wages for youth to work in the Career Center.

In 1991 BMAC began providing internships for youth through a special $51,912 governor's grant to provide women with Commerce to gain work experience, on their path to gain job readiness.

In 1992 BMAC partnered with Commerce to develop the Rural Conservation and Improvement Program.

In 1993 BMAC teamed up with a nonprofit organization and public agencies to gain work experience on conservation and improvement projects to improve public or low income housing.

In 1994 BMAC continued to provide comprehensive employment assistance through education, training, career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources.

In 1995 BMAC's Job Training Center and school district jointly opened the Job Training Participation Act. Still providing job training services.

In 1997 BMAC implemented WorkSource/WIA services to youth and opened the Job Training Center, where adult and youth received long term jobs in various public service.

In 1998 BMAC's Job Training Center and school district jointly opened the Job Training Participation Act.

In 1999 BMAC continued to provide comprehensive employment assistance through education, training, career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources.

In 2000 BMAC began providing access to career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources.

In 2007 BMAC teamed up with Walla Walla Public Schools. These students could develop job search skills through education, training, career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources.

In 2012 BMAC began providing access to career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources.

BMAC's lobby also provides computers with access to career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources for work.

BMAC also provides computer access to career counseling, personal and life skills development, job placement, and employment resources for work.